

Marrickville Council presents:

2013 Program

Open Marrickville

arts and culture

The Marrickville area is the centre of Sydney's independent arts scene and is home to many artists, studios, commercial art galleries, artist-run initiatives, theatres and festivals.

If you're a Facebook member and want to find out about upcoming artists, arts, culture, events, festivals, workshops, shows and gigs in the Marrickville area, visit the Art Post Facebook Page and click the "Like" button.

For further information about Marrickville's Arts and Cultural program and opportunities visit Council's website and sign up to Art Post or contact Council on (02) 9335 2222; or visit www.marrickville.nsw.gov.au.

Growing up in Marrickville as a child with migrant parents from Calabria, Italy has provided me with an appreciation for culture both my own and others. I encourage everyone - young and old, and from all backgrounds - to embrace and participate in this fantastic festival, which has been organised by the community with the support of Council. Come and experience some of the rich culture which makes up Marrickville.

Marrickville Council believes that the arts, culture, and community go hand in hand. Open Marrickville embodies our vision of Marrickville as a place of culturally diverse, forward thinking, inner city communities, that is the land of the Cadigal-Wangal people, and is enriched by generations of migrants from all parts of the world.

The festival emphasis is on celebrating multiculturalism, building connections between people and age groups. By opening up our cultural events to more generations, and involving all of our community in organising these events, we believe the result will be deeper understanding, and lead to more profound experiences for more of our Marrickville residents.

Enjoy the festival.

Mayor of Marrickville*

NEXT YEAR'S PROGRAM	29

INTRODUCTION

Marrickville Council's Open Marrickville unlocks the talents and creativity of local communities and celebrates our many and varied cultures.

Open Marrickville is now in its second year, and takes the form of a festival - eleven days celebrating multiculturalism through storytelling, music, dance, art, theatre, food, and simply gathering together.

The festival provides opportunities for deeper cultural understanding and exchange between communities, with a focus on youth involvement, encouraging younger generations to connect with and learn about their individual backgrounds, and share and celebrate these with the broader community.

Open Marrickville is timed to coincide with National Sister Cities Day, and will take place from 20 June to 30 June 2013 in a variety of locations across the Local Government Area. These activities are organised by local community groups, schools and community organisations, with support from Marrickville Council through a grants program.

The local community was invited to apply for funding to stage their own events with the themes of culture, sharing, adventurousness, empowerment and community collectiveness.

The program takes into account that many communities call Marrickville home and gives them the opportunity to be involved and make decisions about how they want to be represented. Council provided support in the form of workshops and assistance, and hopes that this will empower groups to use these skills to hold their own activities in the future.
