History of the Item

This land was originally part of the Summer Hill subdivision of the Underwood Estate. In 1934, this was part of a large parcel of land was transferred to Albert John and Thomas Jones, both builders of Summer Hill. They put through Allman Avenue and completed the flat development there. The subdivision of Allman Avenue was completed on 24 January 1941 and approved by Ashfield Council in February 1941. On the Smith Street frontage, they built No 159 and 169 as landmark buildings leading to their development.

Physical Description

Modest two storey block of four flats with some elements of Inter-war Functionalist styling. Brick construction with a rounded corner on the south-western corner. Eaves at the front are wider, whilst those to the rear along the sides are shallow with decorated brick courses below. Brick entrance arch to the main doorway. Plain glass casement windows in triple sets. Stairwell light has coloured glass with a simple geometric pattern in the glazing bars. Bricks laid on ends to create small dentils under the windows. Hipped roof of Marseilles terra cotta tiles. The facade has now been painted. This is part of the Allman Avenue group.
