Dreaming with eyes open

Dream with your eyes open and write a short story about your wildest daydream.

I was reading my book at night it was a really creepy story, but as I closed the book. When I closed it there was a terrible BOOM! Suddenly I was in a completely different world. It was terrible.

When I turned around I saw a dragon, and I was standing on a lava rock it was melting... fast! I had to jump from one to another it was terrifying. After a lot of jumping I reached an enormous volcano. I heard rumbling and bursting bubbles. I knew it was going to erupt I ran for my life. While I was jumping I noticed a giant whale swimming towards the erupting volcano. I had to save it, so I put a rope around the whale and pulled, but I wasn't strong enough, I called someone nearby to help but there was no one. Just then a little girl came and asked if she could be of any assistance. I said that what she was doing was really hard and that together they would still need help, but the girl just said "we'll see about that" and pulled the rope, surprisingly she was really strong and was able to pull the whale back in a jiffy. Although the whale was safe the still needed to return the whale to it's home, luckily her waters were very close so they took the whale to her home. Just as they were getting back, a huge whirlpool dug through the ocean and it made it really hard to exit, so they went in the whirlpool and while they got sucked in, the little girl told me how she got here, and it well it was the same as me! While we were still going down we managed to see a tiled floor, we were very curious. When we reached the floor we saw a half ghost half human, his name was John, and he told us that he purposely brought us here because we loved reading, as well as that he also said he would also let us go back to bed, and in a flash, I was back in bed!

After a bit I found myself in bed and I was astonished at what had happened, I knew it was a dream and got out of bed, I then looked at myself in the mirror and I screamed I had lava on my pants my t-shirt was half wet and my shoes had lava rock in it and they were stinking!
