Dreaming with eyes open

Dream with your eyes open and write a short story about your wildest daydream.

What if we were all inside an eternal dream of somebody's. What if we weren't real we were just in somebody's dream which is eternal! And when that person wakes up every body in the world dies! But when that person has nightmares... zombies fall out of the sky surrounding you they could eat you at any second. And mad scientist making tons of malfunctioning robots that could zap you any millisecond. And dragons flying around setting buildings on fire and causing destruction. Also grim reapers were going around cursing people. In fact the mad scientist created a new virus called the black shadow virus. And aliens from different multivers going to experiment on people. And dark mages hypnotising all the people who survived chaos. They made sure no body where alive. But when that somebody has a dream you can wish for anything you want! And there will be no dark mages nor zombies, mad scientist, malfunctioning robots. Oh yeah I forgot when that person has nightmares combined with dreams its the exact same as a dream you can still wish for anything you want.
