Dreaming with eyes open

Dream with your eyes open and write a short story about your wildest daydream.

I was standing on the top of a really tall building, with nothing to hold me up there if I fall, I thought life had ended. I did not know it was a dream. I yelled, "HELP!" But, I could not hear anything. So I yelled again, "HELP!", I still couldn't hear myself. Had my hearing gone bad? "All I need is a megaphone," I sighed. "Wait, I can hear myself!" I said gleefully. "Well, at least that's solved, But if I had a megaphone, I could scream help and maybe, just, maybe I could get someone to save me." Suddenly, some fluttering wings were in front of me. I did not know what to do, but then a sign was in front of me. It read: HOP ON THE WINGS. I did, BOOM! I was a chicken! A flying chicken! Finally, I reached the ground, and I was a human again. This is my craziest daydream!
