

A girl lost in the woods

Whoosh! Whoosh! The trees are dangerously crashing into each other, some trees are on a slanted angle. Thud! The lightning shot a tree. Awooooo! Wolves are howling. Hearing weird sounds. Don't know where I'm going. Just following the footpath. Seeing scary trees and even scarier animals. My only weapon is a stick. I see black and dark green vines, and I'm all by myself in the dark. What should I do? Where should I go?...

I'm wandering around the forest hoping for something good to happen. I keep praying and praying but still nothing happens. Looking around with my eyes wide open but feeling soo tired. Hoping there is somewhere to sleep. Then I spot something, something tall and dark. I have a feeling it is going to be useful. I slowly and carefully walk towards it. Then I realise it's a house.

I open the door and it makes a squeaky sound. I take a little peek. There is dust on the furniture. So I leave the house thinking it will be useless, but the minute I leave, I hear a cry. Waaaaaaa! I go back in the house that looks like it is haunted, and see stairs. I scaredly go up those stairs and take a peek. I see rooms. I peek at each one. Ahhhhhhhhhh! In the very last room is an old lady cuddling up in a blanket.

She looks sad so I sit down next to her. I ask her how she is. She says, "I'm sad because my daughter passed away and this is the spot where we used to hang out. She liked haunted things." I asked her to help me find my way home. So we start walking.

We walk past trees, bushes, houses and more. Then I see my house. I am soo happy to see my family. I thank the old woman and go inside.
