One morning there was a girl called Hanna and her family lived in this house for a long while, but little did they know their house had a curse that the day the youngest child was born at the hospital with the mum, the others that are going home will have an accident and die.

Unless they borrow a book from the library that says: THOSE WHO FIND THE END OF THE RAINBOW SHALL HAVE ETERNAL LIFE, AND NOT DIE OF THE HOUSE CURSE.

The daughter and her father were in the car, the daughter said: "dad can we go to the library?" the dad said: "Yes"! His daughter is called Hanna. When they went to the library Hanna saw an old book. She read the blurb that says: eternity awaits. So she was curious what does it mean? As soon as she said that she took her and her father inside a magical portal.

That took her and her father to a magical world (inside the book.) Hanna and her father both said: "look!" a message appeared and it said: you'll find a rainbow to break your curse because your house has a curse and you have to break it otherwise you'll die! Once they saw that they knew to go north (that's where most rainbows are.) As they entered it there was a dragon they almost got killed, but they had magic to save them. Little did they know there was a fairy upon them giving them magic.

They defeated the dragon but they got pushed through the lepreachorn portal then Hanna and her father fell on a four-leaved clover, that means good luck said Hanna, they found the rainbow and touched it! but getting home was a problem. they were looking and looking but still find anything. A year past and they still didn't find anything but one day
