

Who : Cara, Eliana, Adelina, Captain Aker, Lady Paris, Opi Anna

What : The 3 girls' ship gets captured and taken over by a mysterious captain and his crew, they force them to go get a prized possession from the deep depths of the ocean. While they are done they get affected by a deadly virus called covid supposedly extinct years ago. The only cure is a fruit called maoskoberry, when they arrive back at the ship they are sent to the dungeon and are tortured by Opi Anna for coming back with nothing.

When : future (2158)

Where : Mediterranean Sea

How : Getting stuck in a ship with a villain when they were trying to get home from a secret mission

The Dept Of 2158

It all started on a quiet afternoon in the middle of the Mediterranean Sea. The sky was orange and pink, and the water looked calm. Cara, Eliana, and Adelina were on their way home from a secret mission, just enjoying the ride back on their little ship, but suddenly, everything changed.

A thick fog came out of nowhere and covered the whole sea. The girls looked around, confused. Then, out of the mist, a giant black ship appeared. It looked old and creepy, and it made no sound at all. Before they could do anything, strange people swung onto their boat with ropes and grabbed them. They were taken to the deck of the scary ship and brought face to face with a tall, spooky man with a long coat and a scar on his neck. His name was Captain Aker, and he looked like someone from a nightmare. People said he disappeared years ago, but here he was with his wife Lady Paris and assistant Opi Anna.

"Welcome aboard," Captain Aker said in a dark voice. "We need something from the deep. You three will get it for us." "What is it?" Adelina asked, already suspicious. Captain Aker grinned whilst pointing towards an old ragged photo of a beautiful pearl necklace. Without a choice, the girls were taken to the ocean's darkest trench. It was cold, scary, and silent except for the thumping of a strange sea creature nearby. But they found the box! Just as they touched it, a strange mist burst out and filled the sea. When they came back up, they were sick. Their heads hurt, they were coughing, and Eliana had a super high fever. The ship's computer said it was... COVID-19. But that didn't make sense Covid had been extinct for a hundred years!

"There's only one cure," the computer said. "The Maoskoberry. Found only on the island of Perdita." Without waiting, the girls ran to the bridge driving towards Perdita, which was just a rocky patch in the sea with glowing blue trees. They searched and searched, but the Maoskoberry had already been picked by someone else. All they found was a chewed-up stem and a weird note. "Nice try. I got here first" signed Lady Paris.

The girls lost almost all hope, until they saw a glass bottle wash up with a note inside. The note had a picture of an underwater cave with beautiful, bright coral all around. After hours of sitting around trying to find a way around this mess, they just felt worse. As they took their last breaths, a unique, undiscovered snake bringing a bright red maoskoberry in its mouth towards the island. The girls took one bite of the maoskoberry and not only did they feel better they also gained enough courage to stand up towards Captain Akre and his evil crew.

Once they got back on the boat they made an intelligent plan to defeat Captain Akre. First, using all the scraps they could find, Cara found a way to invent something that sounded like an alarm. Ding! Ding! As everyone evacuated the ship the girls stayed behind driving off into the horizon finally going home.