

THE THREE COLOURFUL KITTENS ON A CLASSROOM ADVENTURE

Once a upon a time in Sunnyville, three colourful kittens started Year 3 at Sunnyville Primary School. They were best friends, but they looked and acted different.

Lucky was a bright orange tabby who loved maths. He always wore a shiny golden backpack and carried a bright yellow ruler everywhere. Lucky like things to be neat and tidy and he was always well organised.

Buddy was a black and white kitten with bright clear blue eyes. He loved art classes more than anything. Buddy had some paint marks on his nose and paws because he was always creating messy paintings.

Finally, there was Coco, Coco was a fluffy white kitten who could not sit still. He loved to play on the playground everyday and wore bright red sneakers that helped him run very fast.

On their first day at school, their teacher Mrs Whiskers, gave the class a special task to do. "Children, today we need to decorate our classroom reading corner," Mrs Whiskers said. "But you must work in groups to make it looks wonderful."

Lucky, Buddy and Coco jumped into work together. But they had a problem. "We should organise and count all the books!" Lucky said, holding his bright yellow ruler.

"No, we should paint a giant, colourful rainbow on the wall first!" Buddy said waving a paintbrush. "Let's race to the library and grab all beanbags!" Coco shouted, bouncing around on his red sneakers.

The three kittens looked at each other. They wanted to do different things. Lucky looked sad, Buddy drooped his ears, and Coco stopped bouncing around.

“Wait,” Lucky said, using his clever maths mind. “What if we combine all our ideas?” Buddy’s bright clear blue eyes lit up “How can we do that?” “Coco is the fastest,” Lucky said. “Coco, can you run fast to the library and bring the beanbags?”

“On it!” Coco ran out the door, his bright red sneakers flashing. “Buddy, can you paint a beautiful rainbow on the wall”, Lucky said. “And I will measure the shelves to make the books fit nice and tidy under your rainbow artwork.”

“Perfect!” Buddy smiled. By the end of the afternoon, the reading corner was the best part of the whole classroom. Buddy’s rainbow glowed with wonderful bright colours. Lucky’s books stood neat and tidy in the shelves, and Coco’s beanbags were placed underneath ready for reading.

Mrs Whiskers was so happy and clapped her paws “Wonderful job everyone! You worked well as a group what fantastic teamwork.” The three Year 3 kittens cuddled up together on the big green beanbag. They realised that being different is what made them colourful and unique, they were a perfect team.
