The wonder

In a town far away in Egypt a girl called Selene was wandering around town in the day. Selene loved walking in the pyramid. This time she was too excited because she found a book called the wonders: a book about an ancient wonder of a pyramid with a treasure in it.

Selene has read the book several times. She starts to sprint towards a pyramid with: TW encrusted on it with stand for, the wonders. As Selene tentatively cracks the gold door open. Inside she finds a chunk of bronze, fragrant staircases. She climbs them very slowly at the top she finds a treasure chest, silver and gold. But she still needs to find the key. She hops up the stairs and sees a silver key shining in the sunlight. Selene approached the key carefully and grasped it. Selene ran down the stairs to open the chest and "click, twist, turn, and click the chest opened. She pulled it forwards and found a golden necklace. From that day forwards, Selene keeps wandering ancient ruins and wear the necklace.
