

Cat's glory

Ally lonely sat under the big, old oak tree beside the deserted parking lot. She had told her very annoying big brother Felix to drop her off 30 minutes early to get over the shock even though it had been 1 week and 5 days she still hadn't gotten over it. She had been asked to tryout for the Innerwest bears, they travel around Australia. Her whiskers twitched as the cold, heavy wind whipped around her. Ally heard 4 final whistles ^{blow} then felt the tension in the air soften. The under 11s, 12s and 14s had finished their training. Ally was trying out for the under 10s. Suddenly fear gripped around Ally! They would all see that Ally was a cat if she didn't hide quickly! Ally sneakily gripped the old oak's trunk with her claws, praying that her claws would stick. As she reached the first branch the fear she had, had slipped away she climbed up a couple more branches then lifted herself into a good sitting position and pulled the vines back down. Kids rushed out and for once Ally was glad she was so fast. She started combing her ears back she transformed her cat face into a human one and her claws into hands. Slipped on her long

Soccer socks so nobody could see her furry legs then she put arm warmers on so no one could see her fluffy, brown, striped arms. Then she put on her ^{purple, blue} boots and shin guards. Finally she put her ^{lavender} beanie and wig on. She still had hair since she could transform into part human but it was stripey so she put on a wig. The colour of the bears uniform was lavender and light grey, but their training uniform was white and blush pink. Then she very carefully clambered out of the tree grabbing her sky blue backpack and maroon mirror. Ally had to admit she looked awesome and completely human. She flung her bag on her back and sprinted to the field. Next to the training ground was a small patch of ^{brown} grass where you were made to wait for it to start. Ally looked over at some ~~other~~ strangers wearing the same bears uniform as her. Infact every one looked ^{almost} exactly the same as Ally but with different coloured beanies. She saw a girl with a red beanie a girl with a dark blue beanie and a very sassy girl with a gold and pink beanie. There was a desk with a blank book and a woman sitting behind it. "Hi there I'm Rosie can you sign in? Love your bag by the way!" The now smiling lady said. "Sure and thank you." Smiled Ally as she wrote down her name Ally Pur in the blank space. 4 whistles blew and all the girls ran to the pitch Ally grabbed her dragon water bottle then dumped her bag into her locker. The coach explained some rules then started. After 30 minutes and 2 drills we went to my favourite ONE VS ONE! Her team pushed her to the front at first she didn't realise why, then she knew she was versus the gold and pink beanie girl the best girl. Ally dribbled to the girl then skilled her then shooted. Boom it hit the back of the net. "YES!" she back flipped. Suddenly the cheering stopped. Ally's beanie and wig fell off. Every one could see she was a cat! Slowly everybody took their beanies and wigs off they were also all cats. The cheering came up again. "Go cats! Go cats!" Coaches did the same thing. "Let's call our team the Inner west cats!" The coach said. "But Ally you have definitely made the team!" The other coach yelled.