The Rainbow Dog

Imagine a world filled with colour. One where you open a magical book and characters pop from out all around you and the world becomes a rainbow. Your favourite characters come up to you and greet you. WHOOSH: characters fly through the air and stop to say hello.

Then suddenly, a scream echoes through the air. A dark laser shoots from the sky turning all colourful things and people dark, roses die and lose their smell, houses collapse and everything becomes boring. The dark grey fields become endless and there are no cars on the old, rocky road.

Everyone is in shock and people are crying out in terror, kids lost and families scared. People decide to explore the dying lands with no colour and they start to wonder if they will ever get out of this terrible place. They all liked when it had colour. The grey coloured monsters are flying while scooping people up and dropping them again. The people begin to work together to try to take down that annoying grey monster who controls all this dirty work.

They sprint to the new, futuristic looking spaceship ready to attack but he has already peppered magical traps shooting carelessly and badly hurting innocent lives. They don't give up but then suddenly, a bright spark flies towards the ground and it turns colourful. Someone yells out from the giant grey crowd that it is a bird or a plane, but they were wrong. It's the dog SNICKERS.

Snickers stomps his way to the spaceship and faces off against the big grey monster. Pew Pew Pew! He uses his dirty tricks to beat him but Snicker dodges all the bullets and goes for it. Snickers jumps up in the air and scratches his face but now he's even more mad. He orders his minions to crash down on him, bruising his face. Snickers is losing.

All the families see what is happening and join in help. After hard work, they manage to defeat that annoying, ugly alien and fling him into space. That's where he'll stay. They all cheer happily, while Snickers flies off to the distance.
